Online reporting tool

Introducing Crimson, Zurich's powerful online reporting system.

Crimson gives our customers instant access to all the engineering information they need in one place.

Feature	How this helps our customers
Dashboard view of the status of all engineering reports across all locations	Gives a consistent overview of engineering risk across the business Identifies what follow up actions need to be completed and when Can mobilise resources where defect trends present a risk to workplace safety
Updated overnight from our engineer surveyors' on-site technology	Access reports within 48 hours of inspection <sup>1</sup>
Download inspection data into an Excel spreadsheet or as a html doc	Utilise these spreadsheets - including graphs and tables - to create powerful management information
Email notification to users advising when reports are put onto Crimson	Gets the right people in front of the information that matters to them as soon as it is available
The ability for users to enter free text into the comments section of the report	Provides an audit trail for reporting activity and actions
The facility to forward reports in PDF format	Reports can be used to communicate a specific risk issue to the maintenance team or help with compliance
An administration section within the system which allows customers to add, delete or amend users as required	Add as many users as required and control who has access to the system and the amount of information they can view
Free electronic Written Schemes of Examination and LEV schematic diagrams	Cost saving plus keeps important data in one place

The tool in action

As with any technology Crimson needs to be viewed to be fully appreciated. However this is what some of our customers said about Crimson.

“By highlighting life-threatening risks we can mobilise resources quickly. Crimson helps the welfare of our employees as well as generating financial benefits.”

“It is a simple-to-use, internet-based tool that is widely accessible by our teams of surveyors. The icons are very useful and the report facility is user-friendly and provides an accurate audit trail.”

“It is now easier for the wider community worldwide to track and work from a single system for all risk management and statutory actions. This will help to make individual sites accountable for their outstanding and overdue actions.”

Why Zurich
